WHY RECONSTRUCTIVE SURGERY BELONGS TO THE HUMANITARIAN RESPONSE IN POST-CONFLICT AND DISASTER EMERGENCIES

The necessity for an internationally recognized and coordinated response to deploy reconstructive surgery and establish robust health systems following conflicts and disasters is urgent.

During this 1-hour round table, international experts will discuss the key considerations for delivering effective reconstructive surgery in post-emergency situations. They will raise awareness on the challenges of providing reconstructive surgery care in a timely manner, and the challenges and opportunities to align interventions with a view towards building strong health systems.
